Dear Mom

Dear Mom,

>This, is the letter that I never send you. Maybe because I was afraid, maybe because I didn't have the courage. But now that I'm 19, I must Face my fear. I can't tell that I clearly remember you, I'm afraid that I was too young, but I remember the feels, I remember your hugs, your eyes as green as mine according to dad, and maybe it's just my imagination, but sometimes when I am alone in the dark without Toothless and defenseless, I think of you and in a way you still with me. Toothless is my dragon by the way, yeah, things have changed but it's a too long story.

You know sometimes dad talk about you, well when he is almost sleepy after dinner and alcohol. But I like those times because it's like you're still with us, like we're still a family.

So, I don't know what else to say... maybe Thank you, even if you're not here, I know that I owe you a lot and that I love you Mom.

Oups, Astrid calling me, the twins... again... Sorry to end that letter in this way but, Mom you know that you'll always be in my heart.

Goodbye

Your son, Hiccup
